2.2 Fall session (September – December 2019)

SOURCES

DTHY 4282 Epistle of James and Social Justice 1 cr.

The first verses of the Epistle engage the Christians to grow in faith while striving towards a perfect conduct because faith itself can only be shown by its works. Chapters 3 – 5 build on the teaching of the Old Testament prophets; the rich and the powerful should treat the poor and the powerless with justice and not take advantage of their low social status. The whole Epistle gives a teaching on the social requirements of faith and provides a source of inspiration for the social commitment of the Christian today.

DTHY 4350 Canadian Catholics Through the Ages 3 cr.

From the arrival of the first priests in Newfoundland in 1498 up to the organization of the International Eucharistic Congress of Quebec City in 2008, the Catholic Church has formed an integral part of the Canadian landscape. Through preparatory readings and class lectures, the students will explore different topics to better understand the implantation of the Catholic Church and its development in Canada. Students will explore their own family religious history, write a report and present it in class. They will also acquaint themselves with a particular topic or an important spiritual text through research and the writing of a paper.

THEOLOGICAL REFLECTION

DTHY 4441 Knowledge and Freedom of Jesus 1 cr.

In a time where believers and unbelievers wonder about who Jesus was, in connection with their own questions about the meaning of their life, this course will ponder viewpoints about the humanity of Christ, taken from exegetes and theologians. We shall discuss issues such as the following: How should we interpret the “he emptied himself” in Philippians 2:6-11? To what extent was Jesus similar to us? Did he have faith, or did he possess a perfect knowledge that ruled out faith? How much of the Father’s design did he know? Did his understanding of his mission evolve, in light of events that shaped his reflections? Was his freedom in all respects like ours? Was he really tempted? What happened at Gethsemane and on the cross? Why could Jesus accomplish something that neither Buddha nor Gandhi nor anyone else could achieve? How and to what extent can we disagree with Thomas Aquinas’s teaching on the humanity of Christ?.

DTHY 4551 Theology of the Environment1 cr.

Environmental questions and preoccupations occupy an important part, nowadays, of social, political, economic and ethical discussions both at the more theoretical level and in the media. Gestures of diverse types are proposed both at the personal and global levels. Religions have joined the choruses of people requiring action. The Catholic Church with Laudato Si, amongst other documents and instances of action has proposed a vision and a spirituality. This series of lectures wants to introduce theologically and critically to these discussions in order to propose an ethical grid to help deliberate appropriate responses to the challenges the environmental situations raises for humanity.

DTHY 4005 Experiential Learning in Voluntary Work3 cr.

This formative activity consist in serving as a volunteer for DUC (Library service, research, mentoring, sports or arts), by presenting a project and providing the service or activities. This is followed by a research paper or experience report supervised and evaluated by a Professor.

2.3 Winter session (January – April 2020)

SOURCES

DTHY 4171 Women of the Old Testament I: The Matriarchs 1 cr.

Even if the feminist movement is taking new directions now, it is a major movement of the 20th century that deeply changed our societies and our Church. This first part of our study of the women in the Old Testament will look at the famous Matriarchs that is the wives of the Patriarchs, Sarah, Rebekah, Leah and Rachel. We will see that they are much more than their husband's wives and have each their personality and role in the narrative.

DTHY 4172 Women of the Old Testament II: Women in the Historical Books 1 cr.

In this second part of our study of the women in the Old Testament, we will look at judges and queens who appear here and there in the so-called Historical Books and the book of Ruth. The narratives about them are shorter, but these women play a major role in the history and traditions of Israel. These are: Rahab (book of Joshua); Deborah and Delilah (book of Judges); Hannah, Michal, Abigail, Tamar (books of Samuel); Bathsheba, Jezebel and Athaliah (books of Kings).

DTHY 4173 Women of the Old Testament III: Heroines in the Hellenistic Novels 1 cr.

In this third part of our study of the women in the Old Testament, we will look at the so-called historical novels of the Hellenistic period. We will study the book of Tobit which develops strong female characters (Sarah, Anna and Edna) and two books whose main character is a woman, Judith and Esther.

THEOLOGICAL REFLECTION

DTHY 2243 Christology 3 cr.

This course promotes the personal critical appropriation of the Scriptural and dogmatic tradition in Christology, whether in preparation for the M.Div. comprehensive exam, or as a solid foundation in Christology for other students. It helps the student preparing for ministry to bring a systematic understanding of the person and work of Jesus the Christ to bear on pastoral issues and exposes the student to the spiritual dimension of Christological teaching. Reading will be assigned weekly as obligatory preparation for class discussion and lectures. In addition to readings in the tradition (Scripture, creeds, patristic texts, medieval theology) and in contemporary theological thought, appropriate critical commentary (exegetical studies, historical analyses, etc.) will be assigned where helpful. Advanced degree students participate in a research seminar on primary sources.

3. COURSEWORK AND ACADEMIC RESPONSIBILITIES

Coursework

The normal coursework for undergraduate studies in Theology is normally 30 credits per year. A student registered for at least 9 credits per term is considered full-time. Since the Faculty only offers 24 credits each year, the missing credits can be chosen among the courses offered in French or in tutorials.

Attendance to courses is mandatory. In case of absence, the Professor must be notified, preferably before the class, and if not, as soon as possible thereafter. The Faculty of theology considers attendance and participation to lectures to be an integral part of the learning experience. Students who miss more than six hours of a three-credit course may continue to audit the course but will be eligible neither for the credits nor to complete the course as a tutorial. Any exception must be approved by the Director of IDEST after consultation with the professor.

Distribution of the courses

The Certificates and Combined programs are divided in the following way:

- Sources Study: Old Testament, New Testament, History of the Church.
- Block 1 Dogmatic Theology (God, Christ, and Revelation).
- Block 2 The Church and the Sacraments.
- Block 3 Moral Theology.

These courses include the mandatory courses of the B.Th. program but offers other courses in related topics or fields of study.

Ancient Languages

Three credits can be granted to ancient languages courses (Latin, Greek and Hebrew) and integrated in the total coursework. If more than one ancient languages course is followed at the undergraduate level, the extra credits will be recognized at the graduate level, if a student continues his studies at this level.

The Hebrew course will be given if at least five students register for it.

Tutorials

Upon agreement with the Director of IDEST, undergraduate students who have followed 45 credits with a B overall average can take courses in the form of tutorials if normal attendance is not possible and if the professors concerned deem it possible and agree to direct the work. In the case of a 3 credits tutorial, the mode of evaluation will entail at least one paper or a written exam. Tutorial registration forms are available at room 310.

Course Selection

Students must submit their course selection on the day of registration: September 8, 2020 for the fall Term and January 4, 2021 for the winter Term. Students must include all the courses they intend to follow during the term, including the electives that will begin later on in the term. To register, students must fill out the COURSE REGISTRATION FORM and return it to the Registrar.

Please bring back your filled and signed registration form at the deadline date, the lateness will not be tolerated. A fine of $5.00 / day will be charged until the form is in.

Any change in course selection, topics for papers and dissertation, type of degree, full-time / part-time registration and extension periods for papers / dissertation or exams must be authorized by the Director of IDEST. Requests for these changes must be submitted in writing to the Director of IDEST (appropriate forms can be obtained in room 310).

4. PAPERS AND DISSERTATIONS

4.1 General Indications

Written Papers

Beside attendance to courses and success to exams, the different degrees in Theology also require the writing of papers connected to mandatory courses of the program. Such papers contain between 7 to 10 pages and their topic may be either a specific question, reading reports or other formulas, in agreement with the professor. The papers are part of the final evaluation of a course and can count specifically as much as 30% of the final mark.

Dissertation

Dissertations are also part of the combined bachelor (B.A. sp. Ph.) and Certificate (C.T.S.). A dissertation is a 15-page paper connected with a mandatory course of the academic year and is worth one credit. Students have to write one dissertation per 30 credits in Theology. The choice of the topic of the dissertations does not follow a specific order or a specific year, as long as all the required dissertations of a program are written.

Presentation

Papers and dissertations must be typed and presented according to the rules of scientific methodology.

Deadlines

Papers and dissertations must be submitted on the set due dates, usually the end of the term when ends the mandatory course connected with them. Any lateness not justified to the Director of IDEST will affect the Professor's evaluation. If an extension is needed, students must first make this known to the Director of IDEST and then fill out the proper form.

Tutoring

Students wishing closer supervision in their work should approach the professor they think appropriate as a tutor in the subject matter.

4.2 Academic Year 2020-2021

Dissertation

The topic for the dissertation must be submitted by September 24 2020, if the student wants to write it in the fall term, and by January 21, 2021 if the student wants to write it in the winter term. Students must fill out the form 8.1 (Choice of Dissertation, p. 27) and return it to the Registrar's office.

Deadlines

For those who choose to write their yearly dissertation in the fall term, it must be handed in room 310 by November 30, 2020; for those who choose to write it in the winter term, it must be handed in by March 29, 2021.

5. EXAMS

5.1 General Indications

Besides papers and dissertation, the evaluation of students includes an exam session at the end of every term.

Written Exams

Students must pass a written exam every year in four pre-set subject matters: Scripture (Old or New Testament), History of the Church, Dogmatic Theology and Moral Theology:

- Every term, two subject matters (one in study of Sources; the other in Theological Reflection) will be pre-set for the written exam:
- For every 3 credits course, the professor will give in advance a list of 6 questions to prepare. For the exam two question from that list will be drawn and students will then choose the one they wish to answer.
- For 1 credit courses, the professor will give a list of 2 questions to be prepared; only one question will then be drawn at the beginning of the written exam. This said, though, exams for elective 1 credit courses are normally oral.

Oral Exams

For all other courses, students have the choice between a written or oral exam; however, students must take at least one oral exam per term.

- For the written exams, see the procedure described above.
- Oral exams for all courses last 20 minutes.

Supplementary Exam

In the event of a failure, students have the right to one supplementary exam.

5.2 Academic Year 2020-2021

Choice of Examination Mode

This year, the choice of the mode of examination will be determined by the professors, who will inform the students at the beginning of the school year.

Examination Questions

Professors will begin the distribution of examination questions November 23, 2020 for the fall Term and March 29, 2021 for the winter Term.

6. SERVICES

6.1 The Director of IDEST

Usually, the Director of IDEST is available during regular office hours (room 327) or, preferably, by appointment.

6.2 Professors

Professors are more than willing to meet students and help them out in their studies. However, Professors prefer that appointments be made with them in order to better plan their work and use of time.

6.3 Administrative Officers

In order to ensure a smooth running of the administrative services, please note the following distribution of responsibilities:
